

ACHILLE'S HEEL

Behind the workings of life there lies a silent force that lives through the human experience. This force is the result of human ignorance and can only be eliminated by human awareness.

The first energy was a reaction between ETERNITY and ETERNITY:

The first form of resistance came from within, causing a positive/negative twist; it twisted because ETERNITY is inseparable.

The first twist is the smallest particle.

The energy of the twist sparked Planck's Constant and thus began the eternal cycle that produces output - just as does any typical generator, except the energy pouring out is for free.

The universal generator pumps life for a collective experience where the smallest particle is everywhere at once.

As the collective increases the smallest particle gains an army by which to maintain its life in energy.

The unique ability of original thought to maintain its resistance by force of its thinking is unknowable by any framework of reference.

Its Achille's heel is that it's inseparable from its own.

It becomes the changing sum of who we think we are.

All as one, we direct the mass to serve our needs.

“Man must recognize his complicity in the act of evil.” - Carl Jung.
